ACEC
American Council of Engineering Companies of Colorado

Affiliate Membership Application

Thank you for your firm's interest in applying for membership with ACEC Colorado. ACEC Colorado is organized and operated as a business league under Internal Revenue Code §501(c)(6) to promote the common business interests of engineering companies and advance the engineering profession through advocacy, education, networking, and standard-setting.

Affiliate Members shall be limited to businesses or organizations that meet all the following criteria:

1. Business Products or Services. The company provides business products or services used in conjunction with the operation of consulting engineering or land surveying firms.

2. Eligibility. Companies deemed not eligible as Firm Members or Associate Members may apply as Affiliate Members, which may include but are not limited to insurance and bonding providers; financial institutions and banks; accounting or legal services; information technology or software providers; equipment, materials, or supplies vendors; and management or business consulting firms

3. Business Conduct. Affiliate Members agree to comply with standards of professional conduct established by the Corporation, including limitations on unsolicited marketing practices as may be set forth in Board policy.

4. Membership Privileges. Affiliate Members are non-voting, may not serve on the Board of Directors, but all employees of Affiliate Members may participate in, or chair committees and additional bodies as permitted by Board policy.

Does your business/organization meet all the qualifications listed above?

- ○ Yes
- ○ No

If you answered "no," your firm is not eligible for an Affiliate Membership but may be eligible for either an Associate or Firm Membership. Please contact ACEC Colorado at email@acec-co.org to request a different application type.

Notice to Applicant
Dues (state and, if applicable, national) will be billed to your firm in accordance with the ACEC Colorado Bylaws and are due within 30 days of invoice. However, your firm may elect to pay dues on an alternate payment schedule. The ACEC Colorado Board of Directors annually reviews and approves an established formula and dues table for state dues, which are assessed against member firms rather than individual members. National dues are set annually by the ACEC National Board of Directors.

ACEC Colorado does not condition membership on any health status-related factor relating to an individual (including an employee of any employer or a dependent of an employee). Resignations must be made in writing to the Board of Directors of ACEC Colorado. Resignation effective date will be the end of the month that the letter of resignation is received, and dues are to be prorated to that date for a "resignation in good standing." (ACEC Colorado Bylaws, Article VI, Section 2C)

Past-Due Accounts: Per the ACEC Colorado Bylaws, "A member who is delinquent in payments due, for a period of sixty (60) days after the due date, shall, unless the Board of Directors determines otherwise in view of the circumstances of the case, cease to be a member." (ACEC Colorado Bylaws, Article VIII, Section 2D)

Per the policy adopted January 2020 by its Board of Directors, ACEC Colorado will impose a reinstatement fee of 25 percent of the annual membership fee for any firm or individual submitting a re-application (i.e., returning as a member for the second or more time) form for membership in Colorado. The reinstatement fee must accompany the re-application form for membership prior to review for approval, per the ACEC Colorado Bylaws, of membership by the Board of Directors. The ACEC Colorado Board of Directors has discretion to waive the reinstatement fee at time of re-application. Please review the complete policy online at http://bit.ly/colo-reinstatement.
